SIR CHARLES DILKE.

During the session of the English Parliament is expected there will be an outbreak of speeches on the South African situation. Most important of these will probably be one by Sir Charles Dilke, who is regarded as the greatest military authority in England. In a recent article in the Fortnightly Review he advocated the adoption of guerrilla tactics in fighting the Boers.

CHINESE CONSUL WRITES ON EXCLUSION

It was not of their own primary will that the Chinese came to the United States. Glowing inducements were held out to secure their immigration. When they were established here, when many of them looked upon this country as their home and wished to become American citizens, as amazing legislative cruelty, in the shape of the Chinese Exclusion Act, was inflicted upon them.

The most boastfully democratic country in the world was the first and only one to shut its doors in our faces. With so fine a demonstration of republican spirit before it, where is so-called benevolence to turn for example?

All the arguments advanced against the Chinese seem to me manifestly unjust. When the same policies are pursued in China, American enterprises very quickly take up cudgels against it. A correct rule works both ways.

If the same restrictions were placed around immigrants of all nationalities, the Chinese could not complain. Legislation in a republic should not be discriminating.

The Chinese are skillful and honest employees. They are law-abiding as a people—never dependent upon almshouses; very few are found in prisons. Throughout the civilized world Chinese merchants are recognized as being the most honest and contract-abiding.

Some recent statements concerning the "Six Companies" are absolutely false. They have not paid the passage of every Chinaman who has come to this country. In China there is no such thing as contract labor. Every immigrant is emphatically a voluntary comer. He pays his own passage, and comes for the same reason any other foreigner does—to better his condition or see new sights.

The "Six Companies" are benevolent organizations as much as American organized charities. Their sole purpose is to care for the Chinese in this country. In time of want or sickness they extend aid. Never do they demand a certain percentage of any Chinaman's earnings. Funds are donated to the associations entirely as individuals feel they can spare the money. Neither do they agree to send a Chinaman home, dead or alive. Sending a body home is at the option of his relatives.

There is no danger of an influx of a million Chinese. All who come to this country are from a small district in the Province of Canton. Outside of this district none can be found who are willing to come.

All the arguments against the Exclusion Act resolve themselves into one long cry of what is supposedly the keynote of this democracy—justice!—Lock Wing, Vice Consul at New York, in the Washington Times.

PICQUART WANTS FRENCH ALLIANCE WITH BRITISH

Paris, Feb. 1.—Colonel Picquart, who was prominent in the defense of Captain Dreyfus, is publishing in the Grand Revue, a series of articles on the military position of France. He says France has come to the end of her military resources, whereas Germany has ample resources with which to increase her strength. France, therefore, must modify her system, and he suggests various reforms.

Discussing the question of France's alliances, the Colonel replies to articles in the National Review. He declares himself in favor of an alliance with Great Britain, and says France will never consent to an alliance with Germany, which would imply a definite renunciation of Alsace-Lorraine. A French alliance with Great Britain and Italy, however, would, he claims, procure military advantage of the first order, because it would give France complete naval freedom in a war with Germany, while if the alliance provided for the active co-operation of Great Britain the advantages would be incalculable. The allied fleets would command the sea, Germany's supplies would be cut and Germany could not sustain a prolonged struggle.

Colonel Picquart predicts that the French feeling against Great Britain on account of the Fashoda Incident and the South African war will die out, and, referring to the criticisms of the value of the British army, he says that when the South African war is concluded Great Britain will have at her disposal a great number of seasoned troops with which to reconstitute the British military forces.

It is the people of the United States and not any one section of them who want water communication established between the Atlantic and the Pacific, and whatever they want very badly they are bound to get. The Ishman Commission's report makes the duty of Congress clear. Let the Hepburn resolution stay where it is in the Senate and let the situation be considered anew in the light now thrown upon it by the report.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Dan" Emmett, who wrote the popular negro melody, "Dixie," which served frequently as a rallying song in the Civil War, is living, at the age of 87, in a little cottage near Mansfield, O.

HONORED HER MEMORY

MISS FRANCES WILLARD REMEMBERED BY W. C. T. U.

Paper by Mrs. McCully-Higgins -- Personal Contributions By Others--Business Meeting Later.

The W. C. T. U. gathered in the parlors of Central Union church yesterday afternoon and held a memorial meeting in honor of Miss Frances Willard, who began the work of the society. The local society raised $26.65 at the meeting to swell the Frances Willard Memorial fund. Mrs. J. M. Whitney, who presided, spoke on the object of the assembly saying it was the custom followed all over the world to meet on the anniversary of Miss Willard's death.

After prayer by Rev. W. M. Kincaid, Mrs. McCully-Higgins read a paper of which the following are a few extracts: "The first and only time I ever met her, who was the most beloved woman of her day, was at a National W. C. T. U. Convention held in Cleveland, in the month of November, 1894. I attended as delegate from Maine. Some one was leading a devotional service. When this was promptly closed Miss Willard took the convention under her own direction. I saw her then for the first time. Her pictures are so familiar I need not tell you how she looked. By means of those pictures you have all become acquainted with her sweet face, the look of the soft way hair, the little tilt of the head usual with people who wear glasses. But perhaps you do not quite see in her pictures the steady, straight, candid look of the white soul through her eyes and on her face, the patient but undimmed expression of one who makes no compromise with a great evil, but with no spirit of hate.

You never once thought of her office as bigger than the woman. She controlled the convention without being arbitrary and arrogant—points in which men so often fail. I wonder if I shall be misunderstood if I say she was not dignified. It seemed to me she was drawn so close to the hearts of the women, there, officers and delegates, there was no room for the stuff formality we call dignity. She often called her officers by her own pet names of them. Mrs. Stevens was "Steele." They all seemed like girls together. Miss Willard was cheerful, bright and even merry at times. Perhaps because of the strength of her faith, the bright, hopeful side of everything appealed to her.

At the end of one of the meetings when I had sat on the platform for two hours or more dreading a presentation to the convention, which Mrs. Stevens wanted, I was introduced to Miss Willard by Mrs. Stevens and spoke of the Hawaiian Union as the eldest daughter of the American mother. She was very tired, and while Miss Gordon was saying, lovingly, urgently, "Dear Miss Willard, do come home," Miss Willard gave me her hand and said wearily: "God bless the eldest daughter." I left the convention charmed by the sweet personality of this rare woman.

Mrs. Whitney read another personal contribution on Miss Willard and Mrs. Harriet Castle Coleman, Miss Green and Miss Whitman all spoke of meeting her. After the memorial meeting, there was a short business meeting. It was announced that Mrs. Henry Waterhouse had resigned as president of the Flower Mission. Mrs. Grace Waterhouse was elected to the place and Miss Newcomb was elected secretary in place of Mrs. Austin, resigned.

At the next meeting of the W. C. T. U. several of the principals of the public schools will appear upon invitation of the Union to give their views on temperance instruction in the schools.

THE GREATEST WEALTH IS HEALTH.

Many a rich man suffering and sick would give all his wealth for the return of good health. Rich and poor can keep healthy if they pay attention to nature's warnings of approaching disease. If your liver is sluggish, if you feel dull, drowsy or inactive, if your heart doesn't pump right, palpitations, thumps, sometimes vigorous, and sometimes faintly; if your bowels are inactive, or overactive; if your stomach fails you; if your kidneys fail to act naturally; your health is threatened; but there is still help for you if you will take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. You must act quickly. Disease is progressive; you must stop it at once. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa will do it. Hobron Drug Co., agents for Kickapoo Indian Remedies.
